

SPRING INTO FITNESS

Auburn University students James Smith (left) and Maya Brown (right) are starting off the new year strong by enjoying the amenities offered by The Auburn Recreation and Wellness Center as a break from their daily tasks. The center is providing seasonal events, including the annual polar plunge, yoga rave and AU burn as a new program all directed for the start of the new year. The center is available for all Auburn students and produces events year-round dedicated to the fitness and wellness of all Auburn students.

UNLEASHING SCIENCE WITH CANINES

Auburn University canine Sampson (middle) is pictured in a training exercise. The Auburn University College of Veterinary Medicine is awarded a $24 million contract by the U.S. Department of Homeland Security to advance detection canine sciences, particularly in the training and use of detector dogs. This award, the largest research contract in Auburn's history, supports the university's efforts to enhance operational threat detection capabilities.